RAIL BOARD APPROVES OLD MERGER

Interstate Commerce Commission Decision Authorizes Alliance to Continue With Protection for Lines

Ruling Provides That Union and Southern Pacific Shall Cooperate to Give the Best of Service to Bay Points

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 (United Press).—The Southern Pacific company today won its fight to avert separation from the Central Pacific railroad, ordered by the Supreme Court, when the Interstate Commerce Commission approved its application to acquire control of the Central Pacific by lease and stock ownership.

The control authorized by the commission may be invalidated whenever the commission finds that the control interferes with consummation of its final plan of consolidation of the railroads of the country into a limited number of systems.

Commissioners Campbell and McChord dissented from the majority opinion authorizing the control. Campbell said that while he concurred in the belief that control of the Central by the Southern Pacific is in the public interest, he was unable to concur in the order, which he declared failed to recognize the mandate of the supreme court dissolving the two roads. McChord held a similar view.

The commission authorized the Southern Pacific to use the Central Pacific until December 31, 1934, and to own all the issued and outstanding stock of the Central Pacific during the life of the lease.

CONDITIONS OF LEASE FIXED BY RULING.

The commission imposed nine conditions upon the lease as follows:

- 1.—That the Southern Pacific Company shall join with the Union Pacific Railroad company in maintaining the lines of the company between Omaha, Neb., and San Francisco bay points, as part of one connected continuous line with through passenger, mail, express and freight train service between Oakland, Cal., and Chicago, Ill., at least equal in every respect to that afforded by either with its connections between Los Angeles, Cal., or Portland, Ore., and Chicago.
- 2.—That the Southern Pacific Company shall join with the Union Pacific Railroad company in maintaining all of the lines of the said companies between Roseville, Cal., and Omaha, Neb., as part of one connected and continuous line with perishable freight train service from Roseville, Cal., to Chicago at least equal in point of time to that afforded by either with its connections at San Bernardino or Colton to Chicago.
- 3.—That the Southern Pacific Company shall cooperate with the Union Pacific Railroad company in the maintenance of train schedules under which neither shall discriminate as to time or service against the other for any other connection through Ogden or Salt Lake City.
- 4.—That the Southern Pacific Company shall, at the request of the Union Pacific Railroad company, provide for the publication and maintenance of rates by the Central Pacific railroad through Ogden, Utah, between all points on the lines of the Southern Pacific company and Central Pacific Railroad company in California, west of Banning and Oregon on the one hand and Colorado common points on the other hand.

NO DISCRIMINATION IN TRAIN SERVICE.

5.—That the Southern Pacific Company shall cooperate with the Union Pacific Railroad company to secure by active solicitation the routing of maximum of traffic over the lines of the Central Pacific Railroad company and the Central Pacific Railroad company.

Conditions Nos. 6 and 7 are provisions that the lease shall be null and void if it is found to interfere with the commission's final plan of nationwide railroad consolidation.

8.—That the Southern Pacific Company shall not voluntarily sell, pledge or otherwise dispose of the capital stock of the Central Pacific Railroad company or any part thereof without the consent of the commission, except that any existing pledge of such stock may be ratified and confirmed.

9.—That this proceeding may be reopened at any time by order of the commission.

COPY OF LEASE FILED.

The Southern Pacific company is required to file with the commission at least ten days before the execution of the lease a copy of it substantially in the form in which it was approved.

10.—That the Southern Pacific Company shall not voluntarily sell, pledge or otherwise dispose of the capital stock of the Central Pacific Railroad company or any part thereof without the consent of the commission, except that any existing pledge of such stock may be ratified and confirmed.

11.—That this proceeding may be reopened at any time by order of the commission.

12.—That the Southern Pacific Company shall not voluntarily sell, pledge or otherwise dispose of the capital stock of the Central Pacific Railroad company or any part thereof without the consent of the commission, except that any existing pledge of such stock may be ratified and confirmed.

14.—That the Southern Pacific Company shall not voluntarily sell, pledge or otherwise dispose of the capital stock of the Central Pacific Railroad company or any part thereof without the consent of the commission, except that any existing pledge of such stock may be ratified and confirmed.

15.—That this proceeding may be reopened at any time by order of the commission.

16.—That the Southern Pacific Company shall not voluntarily sell, pledge or otherwise dispose of the capital stock of the Central Pacific Railroad company or any part thereof without the consent of the commission, except that any existing pledge of such stock may be ratified and confirmed.

Brave Women Save Children From Fire Peril

When Flames Cut Off Exits Mother Tosses Three to Nurse in Yard.

By tossing her three children one by one from a window of her burning dwelling into the arms of their nurse, who stood in the yard and caught them, Mrs. Beverly E. Wilder, aided by Miss Mary Gray, saved them from burning to death in a fire which destroyed the Wilder home at 2445 Humboldt avenue early this morning.

Mrs. Wilder and Miss Gray, the nurse, who were alone in the house with the three children, were awakened at 1:45 o'clock this morning to find the place enveloped in flames. Investigation showed that all the outer doors were cut off by the fire. The only means of escape was through windows, which because of a high basement, were at a considerable distance above the ground.

Clad only in her night clothes, Miss Gray leaped from the window of her room into the yard below. Then she ran to a spot beneath the window of the room in which Mrs. Wilder was removing from their beds her three children, Beverly, Jr., 10 years old; Peter, 5, and Ann, 4.

Throwing open the window, Mrs. Wilder held one of the children out over the sill, below which Miss

Before she left Muskogee, dispatches stated, her husband gave her practically all of his estate, valued at $550,000, whereupon she turned $200,000 back into a trust fund for him, to revert to her at his death.

SHIP SUBSIDY WINS FIRST SENATE TEST

Vote On Motion for Earlier Meeting to Rush Measure to Decision Is Carried, 31 to 26; Changes Offered

Group Makes An Appeal to Harding to Accept Amendments Designed to Placate Opposition of Farm Bloc

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—In a virtual test vote on the administration ship subsidy bill today the Senate gave 31 votes in favor of 26 votes against the administration program.

The vote was on a motion of Senator Jones, Washington, chairman of the commerce committee, to force the Senate to meet at 11 a. m. instead of noon. Jones wished adoption of the motion in order that the shipping bill might be rushed to a final vote.

By WM. K. HUTCHINSON, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—An appeal was made to President Harding today to accept a group of amendments to the ship subsidy bill designed to make it more palatable to the farmer representatives in the Senate.

A committee of senators, both Republican and Democrats, called upon President Harding and informed him that with these amendments they were confident the bill could be jammed through the Senate without them they told President Harding the outlook is dark.

President Harding declined to commit himself on whether the amendments were acceptable to the administration. The changes desired by the senatorial callers would increase the subsidy provisions for strictly cargo vessels and wipe out subsidies for those vessels carrying passengers. The preference has been made to appeal particularly to members from agricultural states whence most of the opposition to the bill comes.

The group which called at the White House included Senators McNary, Republican of Oregon; Moses, Republican, New Hampshire; Shortridge, Republican, California; Randall, Democrat, Louisiana; Bursum, Republican, New Mexico; and Stanford, Republican, Oregon.

Private Fight For Passage of Bill

They paid their visit just as the final fight for passage of the bill was getting under way at the Capitol with Senator Jones, Republican of Washington, leading the administration's fight.

Without the amendments, the senators informed Harding, no more than 43 votes can be mustered for the bill, but with the changes they believed enough agricultural members could be swung over to pass it.

"The subsidy bill must be passed or the merchant marine built up during the war will rot at American docks," Senator Jones, Republican, Washington, told his colleagues.

Led by Senator Jones, supporters of the bill served notice they would force consideration of the bill next week if the opposition showed a disposition to filibuster. It was their plan to exclude all other legislation, including the British debt settlement bill, until the "decision" asked by President Harding has been reached by the Senate.

OPPONENTS DECLARE THEY'LL NOT CHANGE STAND.

The bill's opponents, a combination of "farm bloc" members, declared they would not change their stand against the bill. They declared their belief that the administration is making its last stand to enact the bill and will abandon the fight within three or four days.

A reluctance to accept amendments was indicated by Senator Jones, in charge of the bill. "Our merchant marine is in a sad condition," said Jones. "We couldn't give our ships away on the condition that they must be operated. It would be robbery if we imposed this condition. Shipowners cannot compete with foreign vessels; it is suicidal. If we put the whole United States treasury behind the effort we might succeed but the cost would be staggering. We then would drive every private shipowner off the seas. In fact, by using the treasury we could drive the British merchant marine out of the ocean, but that is the only way."

"We are now losing annually about $50,000,000 on our government fleet and this cost is so trifling compared to the benefits, there should be no hesitancy in enacting the bill."

Against Jones' appeal, Senators Fletcher, Democrat of Florida, and Huchcock, Democrat of Nebraska, declared the bill would "further drain the American treasury in extravagant waste."

Youth With Five Millions Works For $18 a Week

(By United Press.) CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—Working in self-inflicted poverty to prove he can make good, Vincent J. Lamb, 20, Denver, millionaire, was discovered here writing quotations on a stock board and the B. L. Copenhagen brokerage firm. His salary is $18 a week.

The youth has legally arranged to have his $5,000,000 estate and its income withheld until he proves he is "a man" by earning $10,000.

"You see, I made a fool of myself and was spending money like water," he said. "Then I got married to Miss Grace Ives, the daughter of an official of the First National Bank of Denver. She took me in hand and I decided the only way to make good was to cut myself off from my income. So I did."

"I got this job through an ad in the paper. It won't be long until I get something better and I'll have the $10,000 in two or three years."

Mrs. Lamb is helping out the family fortunes by making her own way as a movie actress in Los Angeles.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. LEASD WIRE TO TRIBUNE.

BERLIN, Feb. 10.—(United Press).—The French are extending the troop advance from the neighborhood of Elberfeld and Lennep toward Radevormwald. It was reported in advices received from Dusseldorf today.

PARIS, Feb. 10.—(By The Associated Press).—German cabinet ministers hereafter will be barred from the Ruhr by the Franco-Belgian forces. Premier Poincare of France and Foreign Minister Jaspard of Belgium, at a conference here today drafted a brief note to the effect which was immediately delivered to the German embassy in Paris and Brussels.

The note reads: "The Belgian and French governments have established that the visit of Chancellor Cuno in the Ruhr region and the action he took there had for its sole object and really resulted in the provoking of a dangerous state of excitement, particularly among the big industrial leaders, chief functionaries and government employees."

"Under these conditions the French and Belgian governments anxious to avoid, especially in the interest of the population, disorders that might become sanguinary, find it necessary to inform the government of the Reich and the government of the states that ministers of the Reich and of the German states no longer will be authorized to enter the Ruhr."

The conference between the French premier and the Belgian foreign minister arranged for yesterday in Brussels after consultations between the Belgian cabinet ministers and M. Lefevre, French minister of public works, resulted in the reaching of complete unity as to methods of action in the Ruhr. General Degout, who the Belgians feel is sympathetic toward them, will remain in command as heretofore, and no inter-allied high commissioner will be appointed, as has been suggested in some quarters. M. Jaspard returned to Brussels today.

Harold Lloyd and Miss Davis to Wed.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—(By International News Service).—Harold Lloyd, actor known only as Harold Lloyd, film comedian, applied today for a marriage license to wed Mildred Davis, petite blonde and for three years a co-star with him in films.

Lloyd's action in applying for a license today was at first rumored that he had been current in film circles for some time that the couple were engaged.

In a recent issue of the license Lloyd stated his age was 29 years. Miss Davis gave hers as 21.

The romance of the two dates back for three years when Miss Davis first appeared on the screen with Lloyd.

The bride-to-be was an extra girl when Bobe Darville quit college for serious drama, and Lloyd found himself without a leading lady. He is said to have seen a pretty blonde girl on the "lot," learned that she had appeared in one picture and that her name was Mildred Davis. Extending a search for her to Tacoma, Wash., Lloyd finally located her, and persuaded her to return to Hollywood and co-star with him.

Although no date for the marriage was announced it is understood the couple will be married in some quiet place with only the intimate members of their families present, and will later make their home at Lloyd's present home on South Hoover street.

By International News Service LEASD WIRE TO TRIBUNE. CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 10.—Turkish extremists who are clamoring for war against the allied powers were reported today to be gaining strength at Ankara, the Turkish capital. They were angered by news from Smyrna that the Turkish commander had reached an agreement with the allied commanders to allow foreign warships to remain in the harbor until diplomatic settlement is made.

Moderates in the Turkish Nationalist Assembly at Ankara pointed out to the hotbeds that it would be national suicide for Turkey to go to war, because she would have to fight not only Great Britain and France, but possibly Russia, Italy and the United States as well. They declared that Turkey could not make war longer than a couple of weeks against such overwhelming odds.

Dawson, N. M., Feb. 10.—Dawson today heard from the lips of Charles Kantal and Felice Martini, miners who walked miraculously from their tomb a "mile below sunshine," the story of the mine disaster in which 122 men were trapped.

Kantal and Martini, for sixteen hours, kept a grim vigil in the shaft of Phelps-Dodge mine No. 1, near where 120 of their comrades, also imprisoned, lay dead and dying.

It seemed that all the paths of the Dawson tragedy centered about the little box-like Kantal home today. Weeping women and wild-eyed children gathered around Kantal and Martini to hear about the fate of the others entombed.

STORY OF SURVIVOR OF MINE BLAST.
The miner, his face begrimed, gesturing with his hands, told his story to the United Press in broken English. He held his two boys close.

"I was loading coal into a car about a mile inside the mine entrance," Kantal said. "A funny sound was suddenly coming from the distance and we knew what it was. Before Felice or I could turn or lay down, it was upon us—the explosion."

"It was like hot air from a cannon," he said. "I was thrown head over heels against a coal car, nearly buried with dirt and fine rocks. When I came to, I crawled about with my flashlight and found Felice."

"The mine lights were out. Felice had a water bucket that somehow hadn't been turned over. We tore the bottom off our sweaters, soaked them in water and tied them around our nose and mouth. Then we just sat there by the water bucket and waited. We knew we were dead men if we moved and got into the current of gas. It was as though years went by."

"Then suddenly I felt a breath of fresh air in my face. 'I touched Felice and we took off our bandages. The air was sweet. We knew that they were pumping it in and we were saved. We jumped to our feet, but it was painful to walk because of our bruises and we had been cramped so for hours. But after a while we came to the shattered entrance of the mine and walked out again on earth.'"

"You are not going back into the mine any more, are you?" the interviewer asked Kantal. Kantal looked puzzled.

"Why, sure. I'm a miner," Mrs. Kantal smiled.

BLAME ON WIRING.
The cause of the explosion has not yet been ascertained. One theory is defective wiring of an electric drill.

Minister of Mines Honorable William Sloan has ordered an investigation, as the department's inspector on January 29 reported that at that time there was no indication of gas in the workings and that working conditions were good.

One of the survivors, now in a hospital, speaking this morning for the first time since he was removed from the pit, said he saw older and more experienced miners delay their rush for safety to help their more youthful comrades who were helpless.

The withdrawal notice sent out by the Kelley Clarke company, issued today, was as follows: "We are in receipt of advice from the Western Sugar Refinery and Spreckels Sugar company stating that they are now withdrawing from the market, except with such manufacturers who have no contracts and must have sugar to take care of their immediate requirements of the running of their plants. Such orders are to be submitted to us, subject to confirmation, but until otherwise informed, we will have no sugar to offer elsewhere."

Berkeley to See Rivalry of Old Town Crier Days

BERKELEY, Feb. 10.—The old days of the "town crier" will be rivalled in Berkeley within the next month.

Legal notices in the future are to be posted in "conspicuous places" instead of being printed as heretofore in the official paper of the college city. Action was taken by the city council yesterday over the protest of Councilman Carl Bartlett, who urged that competitive bids be called for official printing as provided under a charter amendment passed last month.

Mayor Louis Bartlett introduced the resolution calling for the posting of notices, the resolution thus passed becoming effective in thirty days. The notices will be posted under the present plan at the public libraries of the city, the city hall, entrances to the university and other prominent places.

S. E. GRAND JURY WILL PROBE AUTO ARSONIST GANG

Confession of Man to Series of Outrages During Strike Involves Union.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—Grand jury investigation of several officers and members of the local chauffeurs' union is to be demanded, as the result of a confession which the police say they have obtained from Charles W. Dunn to the effect that he was paid to burn taxicabs and beat up non-union drivers during the taxicab drivers' strike last May.

Captain of Detectives Duncan Matheson said that Dunn had signified his willingness to testify before the grand jury along the line of his confession. Dunn is now being held in the city prison.

Dunn is said to have confessed that on six different occasions he was paid $50 by an official of the chauffeurs' union for burning taxicabs and that on several occasions he and others were paid $25 for beating up and robbing non-union taxi drivers.

Dunn implicated two other men besides himself, the police say, and intimated that many more were concerned. One of the men implicated by Dunn denied the charges.

According to Dunn's confession, this man, who is an official of the chauffeurs' union, paid men to stand in doorways with slingshots and hurl missiles at taxicabs operated by non-union drivers. Emery dust was dropped into the motors of taxis, practically ruining them. Dunn cited alleged instances in which taxi drivers were held up, beaten and robbed, and their machines taken to deserted streets and burned.

Health Restored by Radium

The wonderful curative power of Radium has been known for years. However, the benefits of this precious health-giving substance have, in the past, been only within the means of persons of wealth.

Since the invention of Degener's Radio-Active Solar Pad, any man or woman, poor or rich, can afford this treatment which offers so much relief from suffering and disease.

Degener's Radio-Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of radio-active energy into the system while you work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to a strong, healthy condition. It creates a vigorous circulation of blood, thus removing congestion, which is the real cause of most diseases.

To prove just what this remarkable treatment can do for you, we will send you an appliance on trial with the understanding that we will not charge you a cent if it fails to give satisfactory results. This offer is open to any person who has pain of any kind, nerve weakness, high blood pressure, stomach, kidney or liver complaint, bladder trouble, or disease of the lungs or heart.

No matter what your ailment or how long you have had it, we will gladly let you try the appliance at our risk. Write today for free literature, giving complete information. Radium Appliance Co., 533 Broadway Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

School Women's Club Plans Entertainment

By EDNA B. KINARD.

Thespians in the Oakland School Women's Club will make their debut in Eboli clubhouse on the evening of Saturday, March 17, according to announcement of the February Bulletin. Because the local thespians, who will be hostesses to the summer's convention of the National Educational Association meeting in this city June 28-July 7, are needing a large treasury to carry out their hospitable plan, the proceeds from the interesting entertainment will be appropriate to this fund.

"Hyacinths" (Tracie May Hanna), a three-character play; "The Mantle of the Virgin" (Miss Ravenscroft), a seventeen-character play; are the vehicles which the school women have chosen for their introduction to the public. Rehearsals are being held weekly in the Oakland High School under the direction of E. W. Jacobson, coach of the dramatic section. Twenty-four teachers are giving much of their time outside of the classroom to perfecting themselves in the details of their parts.

Miss Marguerite Ellis (Lockwood school) is general stage manager. The play managers have been appointed as follows: "The Mantle of the Virgin," Miss Joyce Lobner (Fremont high); "Mr. and Mrs. P. Roe," Miss Doris von Schoen (Fruitvale school); "Hyacinths," Miss Grace E. Wells (Claremont school).

A prize poster contest announcing the plays has been inaugurated by the School Women's club. Entries may be made up to February 28. Miss Alice V. Baxley (Lafayette school) is in charge of the contest.

Two Californians Describe Lincoln On Day of Death

Two Californians living today saw Abraham Lincoln on his last day on earth. "The Last Hours of Lincoln," as described by them, is the theme for a timely article in the Sunday TRIBUNE magazine. Other features in the Sunday TRIBUNE Magazine are: "The Garden of Eden Revolt"; "Black Friday—Alimony Day," by O. E. Jones; "What Was in the Crown's Nest," by C. I. Slaughter; "Making Sacramento a Port," by H. H. Dunn; "Why St. Valentine's Day," by Jessie Juliet Knox; "The Story of Billy the Kid," by Charles M. Russell; "The Motor Marks Hostlers of the Air Mail Steeds," by Jack Bell; "The Buried Greek of Mexico," by Mira Maday; "Cerulean on Psycho-Analysis," by Omar Moffatt; and "The New Freedom and Knickerbocker."

During January 1920 bottles of milk with crackers were served in Alameda school under the direction of the Parent Teacher Association superintending the nutrition classes. Of this amount 531 bottles were served to children suffering from malnutrition whose parents were unable to meet even the small costs.

The philanthropy bureau of the Alameda mothers club has presented an interesting account of its efforts in the appropriation to the Junior Red Cross Shop of 51 new garments and 11 reconstructed garments in addition to the five garments, four pairs of shoes and a pair of slippers which were distributed through the school. Kindness extended to a family which was in need of clothing, a second household in which money, boxes of clothing and food were distributed.

Baby were required, and to a student who was furnished with bloomers and underwear.

A Founders' Day program followed by a silver tea will be enjoyed by the Alameda women on Friday, February 16, in the school auditorium.

Community dances are held on the first Friday of each month.

To swell the general treasury of Frick Parent Teacher Association, a card party will be given by the members tonight at the home of Mrs. D. W. Haines, 2641 Sixty-sixth avenue. The mothers are promoting an active program of work on behalf of the child of school age.

Covered Up Debt In Sale Is Charged

That Chester A. Madson concealed an indebtedness of $2000 when he sold them an electric contracting business at Hayward is the contention of James Van de Peer and G. A. Wagner in a suit filed by them in Superior court yesterday.

Madson, who is now in jail on a charge of embezzlement, is alleged to have sold the business to the plaintiffs for $2000, but to have concealed a debt of $2000 which he owed to the plaintiffs.

The plaintiffs charge they were compelled to pay $2000 in bills which they alleged Madson did not include in his statement of assets and they ask judgment in that sum.

"WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA"

says of Harry Gaze's work:

"This work is the result of earnest study and observation, covering a period of over twenty-five years, during which time he has traveled more than two hundred thousand miles and lectured in hundreds of towns and cities. It represents a wide acquaintance with books, embracing the principle sciences, especially biology, physiology, psychology, evolution and individual attainment of notable men and women in all the greatest nations of the world, and also represents the result of personal contact with thousands of students and advanced thinkers in England and America.

"He seeks to open to the student the only foundations upon which the truly successful career can be built. During his exceedingly active experience as a platform speaker, lecturer and teacher, the author has been interested in causes rather than effects. He has constantly sought to emphasize the appreciation of vitalized, dynamic thought, in the affairs of every day life, and his writings abound in many of the most striking and helpful teachings as to the essential value of right thinking, that are to be found in the English language.

"He places the supreme emphasis upon thought, out of which the visible universe, in every detail of its minutest part, has come.

"He also emphasizes the importance of right motive as the only basis of rational living, and shows that a kindly and generous nature has nurtured us and brought us to a stage of this marvelous Twentieth Century, where many men and women are prepared to receive the message of Conscious Constructive Evolution—one of the most welcome and far-reaching messages that has ever found entrance to the mind of man.

"Conscious Evolution, according to the system here presented, means scientific, constructive thinking for continuous advancement, and constructive thinking, we are assured, means youth, health, happiness, and abundance of material prosperity.

"Surely here is something worth while!

"The simple statement of the principles of the New and Applied Psychology, which any earnest student may learn and apply, carries conviction to the open mind; and the application of the principles, clearly stated from many points of view, would work a silent revolution for harmony and happiness throughout the world, and would prove the greatest blessing in all departments of life that imagination can conceive."

ROGER W. BABSON

The noted financial expert, says in the United States Bulletin in reference to the work of Harry Gaze:

"The great problem before American industry today is: How can we revive in labor a desire to produce and enjoy in production? "Certain investigations recently made by The United States Bulletin lead us to believe that the solution may come through a religious revival. We do not refer to the old-fashioned religious revival of Methodist camp meeting days. We refer more to the work which some of the so-called 'new thought' people are doing. They take hold of struggling workers and, by talking success and prosperity, actually increase their productivity and earning capacity. Definite classes in success and prosperity are now being held by Harry Gaze. In these classes the teacher shows that enterprise, initiative and will power can be learned and cultivated like French or Spanish.

"Government reports clearly show that it makes little difference to a manufacturer in what line of work he is engaged. There are opportunities in all lines. It is impossible to mention an industry in which some one is not now making 1,000,000. This same principle applies to wage-workers. It makes little difference whether one works in a shoe factory, in a cotton mill, or in a steel plant. Every one of these industries offers wonderful opportunities for improvement and development. All of them are hungry for new ideas. Most of the ideas now being used have come from the soul of some wage-worker. All wage-workers have the same opportunity today. Yes, the opportunity is now greater than ever.

"We strongly advise manufacturers, business men, and their executives to give greater consideration to these matters."

BATTLE OPENS TO BRING DIVORCE TRIAL BACK HERE

Mrs. Marion Mooney Opposes Hearing of Case in Los Angeles.

A fight to bring the divorce suit of Mrs. Marion Mooney against William S. Mooney back to Alameda county for trial opened today in Los Angeles with the filing of a petition for a change of venue. This move was made by Attorney Weston Higgins on behalf of Mrs. Mooney.

When the suit was filed originally in this county by Mrs. Mooney, her husband, who is at present manager of the Culver Land and Bond company of Los Angeles, and was formerly interested in a number of local projects, obtained a change of venue to Los Angeles on the ground of his residence there. Mrs. Mooney in her motion filed today sets forth that all of her acts alleged by her in her complaint as cruelty happened in Alameda county. She alleges that the venue to the acts all reside in this county and are 24 in number. She sets forth that to compel these persons to travel to Los Angeles and appear in the case would be out of the question.

Mrs. Mooney alleged in her complaint that her husband, who was the builder of the Free Market at Nineteenth and Telegraph avenue, was constantly humiliated by her. She charged that on numerous occasions his checks were returned marked insufficient funds. Mooney, in an answer filed this week, denied these allegations, but insisted that his financial difficulties were brought about through his wife's extravagance.

Wood Denies He Will Debate Budget

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 10.—Will C. Wood, school superintendent and George B. Audubon, a member of the state board of education, were denied today that they would participate in a debate on Governor Richardson's budget before the Commonwealth club in San Francisco next Thursday.

Radiell stated he had not been invited to defend the budget in the debate, but said Mrs. Nellie Pierce, also a member of the board, would speak at the meeting. Mrs. Pierce had charge of the evening's program.

Wood will be represented in the debate by A. R. Heron, deputy state director of education.

Hayward Postal Returns Gain By 76.01 Per Cent

HAYWARD, Feb. 10.—A gain of 76.01 per cent in postal returns for January, 1923, over the return for January, 1922, was announced today by H. A. Bradford, postmaster here. In January of this year postal receipts totaled $1566, according to Bradford, while for 1922 they were $8916. It is believed that this gain is one of the most remarkable records made in the postal department during the present year.

Bradford accounts for the increase by the large number of new residents in the district served by the office. Appearances indicate, he said today, that there will be an increase rather than a decrease in this growth of business.

Should the growth continue the receipts for this year will exceed those of 1922 by several thousand dollars. The returns for last year totaled $18,000. With this increase in the returns it is believed that the enlargement of the postal staff is certain to result. Bradford recently made application to the postal department at Washington for additional carriers for Hayward.

Wartime Echoes in Federal Court

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—The war time conduct of Joseph Woerndle, Portland, Ore., attorney, was criticized and defended in the United States circuit court of appeals here yesterday when oral arguments were heard on the appeal of the government from the decision of the federal court in Oregon which refused to cancel citizenship papers held by Woerndle since 1904. The case was submitted.

Woerndle was before a court today for citizenship papers, said John S. Coke, United States attorney, "this application would be denied on the ground that he was ashamed of the conduct of the United States during the war, that he aided Hans Borch, a notorious German spy, to escape from the United States to Germany, and that America was not the country of his first allegiance."

"This man," continued Coke, "is one who ought not to be exercising the high privileges of citizenship and the power which accompanies it."

C. T. Haas, attorney for Woerndle, asked the court to consider the state of mind of his client in 1914, his parents in Germany, his brothers in the German army, his friends of childhood fighting on that side.

"In deciding this case I would consider the extenuating circumstances which surrounded Woerndle's acts. It is not fair to judge the Boehm passport incident of 1914 in the spectacles of 1923."

"Suppose the United States had joined with Germany instead of England, would this man be here defending his citizenship on the grounds of patriotism?"

asked the court in concluding his argument.

San Leandro Shows Building Activity

SAN LEANDRO, Feb. 10.—The first ten days of this month have witnessed building permits to the value of over $40,000 being issued, according to W. J. Rowles, building inspector here. With such a start, he said, February can be expected to set a record in the construction of new buildings.

It is expected by Rowles that the half-million mark reached last year in building permits granted will be passed.

Absentees From Church Asked Cause

Ministers and religious leaders throughout the world are stressing the importance of reaching the people out of the churches. Many plans and schemes have been used in bringing these people back to regular church attendance.

Why don't these people attend church? There must be many and diverse reasons why people have discontinued church attendance.

The TRIBUNE is offering a prize of $10 for the best statement as to why I do not attend church, and a second prize of $5 for the next best answer.

Answers must be of a constructive nature and must not be over 250 words in length. Replies must be forwarded to the Church Editor of the TRIBUNE before February 24, the day on which the contest closes.

This is the second contest in a series on church attendance. The first was conducted last month and hundreds of answers were received from churchgoers. The contest this month is being held for those who do not attend church.

First Unitarian, Alameda

At the morning service of the First Unitarian Church of Alameda, tomorrow Rev. Gordon Kent, the pastor, will speak on "Is There a Real God?" In delivering this sermon, Rev. Kent states that he has considered among others the following questions: Can any educated person in the twentieth century believe in a God? Do modern philosophers even mention God? Is God a poetical fancy, or a priestly fraud, or a scientifically verifiable fact? If there is a living God then our universities are all wrong in ignoring Him—and if there is not a living knowable God, then our churches are built on fraud. "Which is right?"

First United Presbyterian

"Religion in the Home" will be the subject of Rev. E. P. Smith, the pastor, at the First United Presbyterian church tomorrow morning. In the evening he will speak on "More About Pentecost in the Modern Church."

Lincoln's Life Inspiration for Many Local Sermons

First Congregational to Honor Boy Scouts

First Congregational

A double celebration of Lincoln Sunday and Boy Scout Sunday will be observed at the First Congregational church tomorrow. The day will begin with a special Lincoln service in the church school. At the morning service Rev. Ralph C. Waddell, the acting pastor, will tell some Lincoln stories, and Dr. Herman F. Swartz will preach on "Our Boys." He will remind the grown-ups of some of the things about boyhood that are now better understood than formerly.

"The study of adolescence, has progressed tremendously in the last generation, and has given us a renewed interpretation of boyhood. One of the things most needed by the men and women of today is a knowledge of the coming generation, the men and women of tomorrow," said Dr. Swartz in speaking of the sermon.

The church troop of Boy Scouts, Troop No. 55, will attend the morning service in uniform. The boys and will give the Boy Scout oath during the service.

The Boy Scouts of Oakland will be the guests of the church at the evening service. Seats will be reserved for the Oakland Scouts and scoutmasters in the center section of the auditorium. The main feature of the program will be a motion picture, "The Knights of the Square Table," said to be among the best Boy Scout motion pictures ever produced. Rev. Waddell, assistant scoutmaster of Troop No. 55, will speak briefly on "Lincoln the Scout" and Scout Executive Homer J. Bemis of the Oakland Scout Council will speak on "Accomplishments and Plans of the Boy Scout Movement in Oakland." He will also lead the scouts in the scout oath and the pledge of allegiance to the American flag. All the boys of Oakland have been invited to attend this service.

First Unitarian

"The Bible and Archaeology" will be the subject of the sermon by Rev. Clarence Reed tomorrow morning at the First Unitarian Church. He will describe the recent remarkable discoveries at Thebes in the tomb of Tutankhamon by Lord Carnarvon, and discuss the possible value to Biblical history.

"It may even result in the determination of the exact time when the Israelites left Egypt and throw light upon the influence of the monolithism of Akhnaton, the heretic king of Egypt, upon the monotheism of Moses," said Rev. Reed in regard to the discovery. He has spent two winters in Egypt, and while at Thebes visited many of the tombs of the kings of Egypt.

"Religion and the Psychology of Healing" will be the subject of the lecture in Wendell Hall tomorrow evening by Rev. Reed. The lecture will discuss the scientific methods that are common to the cures effected by the various modern healing cults.

"Greater Oakland and Banking" will be the subject of an address by S. E. Biddle, before the adult class tomorrow morning.

College Ave. M. E.

William Gillanders, general secretary of the Oakland Y. M. C. A., will be the speaker at the morning service of the College Avenue Methodist Episcopal church tomorrow. Application of the principals and objects of the life of Abraham Lincoln are to form the keynote of many of the sermons to be delivered in local pulpits tomorrow. Other churches are centering their activities in special service for the young people.

The First Congregational church is to have a combination service both morning and evening. The Boy Scouts are to be the guests of honor at both services when the program will center about the life of Lincoln.

Park Cong'l Community

"The Spirit of the Master in Our Government," with Abraham Lincoln as an object lesson, will be the sermon at the Park Congregational Community Church Sunday morning, by Rev. G. A. Werner. The evening service will be along the line of the patriotic program planned for the month of February, and the lecture will be "One Hundred Per Cent American."

The Junior church service at the Sunday school, as conducted by L. Van Wicken, the superintendent, is of interest. The opening service is conducted very much like the church service and Van Wicken gives what he calls "topic talks" in the place of the regular sermon. Tomorrow the topic will be "The Other Two Monkeys." The young people's Bible class for the older boys and girls is an active organization in the Sunday school under the direction of Rev. Werner.

Miss Almee Thompson will be the leader at the Christian Endeavor service Sunday evening.

First Presbyterian

"Feathering Your Nest But Losing the Kingdom" is the subject for Dr. Frank M. Silsley's evening sermon at the First Presbyterian church tomorrow. In this sermon, Dr. Silsley states he will discuss the ways in which men barter their spiritual birthright for the sake of world pleasures and world things. Speaking of this sermon he said: "Some have said that every man jack of us wants success, but there is a way to get success without losing the kingdom. Every man and woman wants to get married, but we should make sure that we are not losing the kingdom. Every one wants money, but money should not make us lose the kingdom. For the first thought of John Wanamaker or Peter Dinklage, it was not to lose the kingdom, but to get it. Abraham Lincoln did not lose his kingdom as did King Saul."

Dr. Silsley will consider the following questions: Is it losing the kingdom to value world stuff too highly? Is it losing the kingdom to make "jazz" marriages? Is it losing the kingdom to exalt Coue above Christ?

Dudley Buck's anthem, "Benedicite Anima," will be sung by the temple choir with soprano solo. Miss Corinne Keefe, contralto soloist, will sing Samuel Liddle's "Abide With Me." At the organ recital, Walter B. Kennedy will be assisted by Albert White, soloist in the leading of the Eastbay district who will play "Andante Cantabile" by Tschakowsky.

The Need of the Spirit of Christ will be the subject for the morning service.

On Tuesday evening at 6:30, the Men's Club will hold its regular meeting. Dr. Ng Poon Chow, Chinese lecturer, will speak on "Chinese Fight With Narcotics."

Dr. H. O. Breeden, the pastor, will speak at the evening service on "Abraham Lincoln," and in the morning on "Forgiving One Another." The Sunday school will have their program at 9:45 a. m. Russell Lowry, who is familiar with many of the scenes in the life of Lincoln, will give the address. Miss Albertina Treadwell will read the Gettysburg address. Capt. D. C. Nutting will present the Bible lesson. The ladies have been invited to attend this service.

He has been able to secure some of the leading men in the state for speakers.

Dr. Ezra Van Noy, who will be there for the entire convention; Dr. E. A. Hanley, Dr. E. F. Hallenbeck and Clarence Hamilton will also give inspiring talks. Many excellent conferences will be held, and one of special interest will be the one on Vocational Guidance by Dr. Hillis, our pastoral counselor, and Prof. Lee of the University of California.

On Saturday evening the big convention banquet will be held in the Twentieth Century Club. This hall will only hold about 500 people, so all who intend to go should make their reservations at once. The banquet committee is securing some good speakers and are planning some novel entertainments.

First M. E.

The morning service at the First Methodist Episcopal church tomorrow will be conducted by Rev. E. R. Dille, D. D., who will preach a Lincoln's birthday sermon. Dr. Dille is a veteran of the civil war and a past department chaplain of the G. A. R. Veterans of the civil war. Spanish-American war and world war are especially lauded.

Dr. H. E. Milnes, district superintendent of the Oakland district, will preach in the evening. His subject will be, "A Misunderstood Sermon."

Oakland Beats University in Final Contest

O. A. L. Basketball Title is Cinched By Blue and White.

University High was up against a superior team in every respect yesterday afternoon at the Oakland "Y" when they met the Oakland High quintet and dropped their O. A. L. game by a score of 39 to 19 to the Blue and White five. Yesterday's game wound up the league schedule for Oakland and while University still have games scheduled with one another the results of these cannot alter the standings. Oakland winning their second consecutive championship.

WON GAME EARLY.

Oakland's victory yesterday was scored in the first quarter. University opening with a bad case of stage fright and the Twelfth street school piled up a lead of 13 to 1 in that period. From then until the

On even terms, the score at half time being 23 to 11 in Oakland's favor. University and Oakland each scoring ten points in the second quarter.

In the third quarter University played great ball and gained a point, scoring six while Oakland registered five. In the final period the University team weakened, while fresh Oakland men ran rings around them, Barrett leading the Coakley played remarkable ball yesterday for Oakland high, scoring five field goals in the first half. Sibbett was high man for Oakland with 13 points, although he only scored three field goals.

TOWERS WAS STAR.

The work of Towers of University High featured the game, the red-haired forward playing a beautiful game, breaking up the Oakland offense repeatedly and making aging four field goals to score 15 points, leading all men on both teams in scoring.

Clark aided the University team. Being back in the game once more at center. Friend of Oakland High. Usually a steady player, had an off day, making but three field goals out of the many chances he had.

On all his attempts beneath the basket he failed, at times taking three and four chances before rest the ball from him. His unusual reach, although it gave him a distinct advantage, both at the jump and under the basket, was of little use to Oakland in cinching the title.

If the Del Monte Cafe or Shattuck Avenue Merchants can win their games tomorrow in the Class A branch of the Oakland TRIBUNE Midwinter League, the big championship between the Crystal Laundry, winners of the Coast race, and the winners of the American and National races, will get under way the following Sunday. The Del Monte must win more in order to cinch the championship of the American, and the Shattuck Avenue Merchants must defeat Pleasanton Merchants tomorrow, or be in a first place position against their opponents. Tomorrow's Class A program is the last of the season, there being four games in the American league and only one in the National. The National attraction will be between the Pleasanton and Shattuck Merchants at San Francisco in Berkeley, while the Del Monte meet the Dunsmuir at the Mokawa diamond.

With the close of the season rapidly approaching, the Alameda City Midwinter League pennant race may come to an abrupt ending tomorrow afternoon when the home club goes against the leadership of the circuit against the fast Alameda Elks, who are now occupying second place, directly due to the beating administered by the leaders two weeks

The largest crowd of the season is expected at Lincoln Park tomorrow afternoon at 2:15.

If they defeat, and consequently eliminate, the Elks, the All-Stars will practically have the pennant tied up, as the club has only two more games to play.

The Park Street Merchants, who re practically out of the race as far as the pennant is concerned, will play the tail-end Alameda Indians in the matinee session at Lincoln Park, the game starting at 1.30. The Scots put up a wonderful brand of ball last Sunday while the Merchants fought gamely against the leaders, losing 3 to 2, half of which gives promise of a close battle.

The West End Merchants, who have launched a drive on first division, play the Bay Shores at Washington, D. C., 2.30. The Mar-hants are out-Couling Coue and are getting so good that the Bay Shore will have to hustle to retain possession of fourth place.

"Prez," as Dr. Knoles is familiarly known, is no mean hand at dropping the ball into the basket. "Pete" Walline Knoles, eldest scion of the president's family, has been an ardent basketball shooter since the first day he appeared on the College of the Pacific campus.

Three other sons, Tully, Gordon and George Knoles, are guards and forward respectively of the basketball team of San Jose Troop No. 3, Boy Scouts of America. With "Prexy" as guard, "Pete" as forward, and other Knoles eager to distribute the team, the Knoles family stands ready to face a court battle deft in any family in the State. interesting to watch the experiment at Stanford, an experiment that involves the rooting out of something inborn in the college man.

As a matter of fact no human being is so in need of long swigs from the bottle of the milk of human kindness as the college first-year student. He has come a million miles from home and mother and he is the loneliest individual in the world. His whole career may be shaped by the treatment accorded him by his fellows on his arrival at the campus. Ridicule will drive him into himself, cruelty will break his spirit, neglect will make of him a shy creature incapable of using his natural talents. It is the Sophomore that needs to be hazed.

A FISHING SQUABBLE.

When the Baltic and Black Seas were blocked during the World War a sudden attention was given to the Murman Coast, in Arctic Russia. One hundred thousand laborers laid a railroad from Petrograd to Murman, building it over bogs and ice and fighting mosquitoes while they worked. It was a stupendous task. Then came the Russian revolution and the rail line was rendered useless.

The American soldiers who were stationed there with the British, French and Italian contingents know all about the cheerless region. There are a few Lapps there now, men who live by raising reindeer, and the Russian fishermen pay the place regular visits. It is the fishing question which has brought the Murman Coast once again into the news.

Russia has questioned the British right to fish in the waters and England has replied it will fish all it wishes, outside the three mile limit. There was a clash in the waters of the far north and Britain has sent a warship up there to protect its interests.

When it is realized that the Murman Coast is on the Arctic Ocean, a bulletin of the National Geographic Society says, one naturally pictures a frozen waste, with even a solid sea in winter. But the long arm of the Gulf Stream, stretched across the Atlantic, around the northern tip of Europe, and along the coast just beyond, makes the Arctic waters which bathe the northern end of Norway and the nearby strip of Russia more truly Atlantic waters. This is an open coast the year round while Arctic waters to the east and the gulfs of the Baltic far to the south are frozen solidly for many months.

Foreign fishermen have been making the most of this region of iceless waters, where in the proper season, schools of cod, herring and salmon abound. Chiefly, the fishing vessels are those of British and Norwegians, who have maintained that they have the right to carry on their trade outside the three-mile limit. This, the Russians dispute, and have arrested boats nine miles off shore. The Russian fishermen of the Murman coast are a nomadic lot who live along the coast in the spring and summer and desert the country in winter.

The American soldiers who fought mosquitoes and loneliness in the Murman's dreary coast would not go back there for all the fish in the Atlantic.

California crops keep pace with the growth of population. According to the report of the State Department of Agriculture, production of the soil amounted to $397,820,000 during the past year. This is an increase over 1921 of $54,000,000 and the tonnage was the largest in history, exceeding abnormal production caused by the world war. Field crops in 1922 were valued at $183,722,000 and the tonnage exceeded 8,000,000. Fruit raising resulted in 2,000,000 tons of high grade products, with a money value of $194,510,000. Cattle and sheep produced had a total value of $19,288,000. Facts and figures are usually cold and harsh but in this case they fairly palpitate with interest. The story of the soil will ever be a romance. Providing man with comfort for his stomach is not a matter of mere physiology.

This is the time of the year when the strong man does well to abandon plans for a political career and turn to the kitchen.

MOUNT LASSEN ERUPTS.

As the only active volcano in the United States, Mount Lassen feels its sense of responsibility and erupts into print at fairly regular intervals. It is in action again today—about the eighty-fifth outbreak since volcanologists began to count them—and is sending up smoke and ashes in such quantities that the motion-picture operators will feel encouraged to make the long hard trip to the base of the mountain.

Lassen's Peak is located some distance south of the Mount Shasta region of California, and is volcanic in origin. Reaching a height of 10,577 feet, it is one of the taller peaks of the Sierra Nevada range. The slopes of the mountain and much of the territory near the base are undeveloped and difficult of access except to hikers and horsemen. Some time ago Congress set aside the Lassen Peak area for national park purposes, and forest rangers have been in charge of it since. The absence of wagon roads or railroads has prevented it from becoming a Mecca for tourists.

If the present eruption continues, scientists would have an opportunity to follow up the experiments which Professor Jagger has initiated at the Kilauea crater, on the island of Hawaii. He has undertaken extensive borings there to determine the availability of the earth's internal heat for power purposes. The problem of harnessing the tides of the ocean and heat of the sun has always been a fascinating one, and that of utilizing volcanic heat offers equal attractions. The day may yet come when all the power needed to run street cars or supply light and heat in Sacramento, Cal., will be derived from the fiery bosom of Mount Lassen.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"He Sees the Past, the Present AND the Future!"

We are in receipt of a letter from a young lady for whom we autographed a book a while ago. She tells us that she submitted what is known to our intimates as our penmanship to a person of her acquaintance who seems to be a sort of composite of fortune-teller and handwriting expert.

She encloses the result: an analysis of our character, a history of our past and a prophecy for our future, which we have read with interest.

The thing is perfectly simple. There is nothing startling about it, nothing flagrantly untrue, nothing that makes us all ashamed of our penmanship as we should be. The document is a collection of perfectly plain statements: We have these and those faults and weaknesses, this talent and that gift; there is a list of our strong points; we are to beware of persons who look thus and so; and we are going on a journey across water.

It is a dull piece of writing but we have learned something from it. We have now embarked upon the composition of a formula which, when finished, will make us one of the ablest fortune-tellers in the world. We will be able to read the secrets of character and fortune in palms, handwriting, cards, faces, cranial bumps and so on.

The theory is simple. There are certain racial traits which every man believes to be unique in himself. There are certain things which happen to everybody yet seem to each individual to be his own private experiences, of which no one else can possibly have any inkling.

All that is necessary is to tabulate these racial characteristics and occurrences so that they can be bound together in a coherent talk without any possibility of error. Thus equipped anyone will be able to build up an unprecedented reputation as a seer.

We can imagine ourselves, for instance, draped in flowing oriental robes, sitting behind a table in a small, stuffy, darkened room. Enter our prey.

"Ah," we greet him or her (the formula works for either sex). "Then you have come at last. It is long, long, long that you have contemplated this visit—not, perhaps, with me in mind, but you have had the intention of consulting one who reads the life beyond. . . . Oh, you are a skeptic, I know. You have not been serious with yourself about this matter. You have told yourself it would be all in fun, this visit—just to discover how much the seer could guess."

"But deep within you—you will not admit it—has been the impulse to believe, the faith that is necessary. Just place a dollar in the box, if you please. Yes, that's right. And sit down at the table, facing me. Yes, you prefer the palm? No? Ah, the cards. You would say—you may say one of the two for it is written in your heart. You could not ask me to read the face or the phrenological terrain or the things which your pen tells me as soon as you set it to paper. . . . It had to be the palm or the cards, for they are in your heart and I have seen them there."

"Will you cut the cards, please? Thank you. . . . And what have we here? The knave of diamonds? . . . Ah, it is unfortunate. The knave is garrulous. He tells me much. You have been—only once, very long ago, you have been truly in love. That is clear."

"And the six of hearts. Strange, strange—the knave of diamonds first and then the six of hearts. And I am sorry for you loved her very truly and very well. And it was not for the best. It has not brought you happiness. . . . I saw a day when it was at its greatest point; it could have ended there. . . . And now the three of spades. That I expect. And after it the ten of spades. It is as I thought."

"You have been done no permanent injury by this affair. Hurt, yes. But broken, no. You are bigger than your concerns, though at times it does not seem so to you. The ace of diamonds! Ah, you are not the person the woman takes you to be."

"You are too sensitive, too sensitive. You are too easily hurt. You should not allow yourself to be hurt. You have overcome the outward appearance of embarrassment."

"The ten of clubs. . . . You are taking a journey, a long journey, perhaps, yet it may not be so long. It begins with a motor vehicle. . . . The queen of hearts. You will meet one of the opposite sex on your journey. The meeting will affect your future life in a degree. . . . But never will you find the sweetness of your first love."

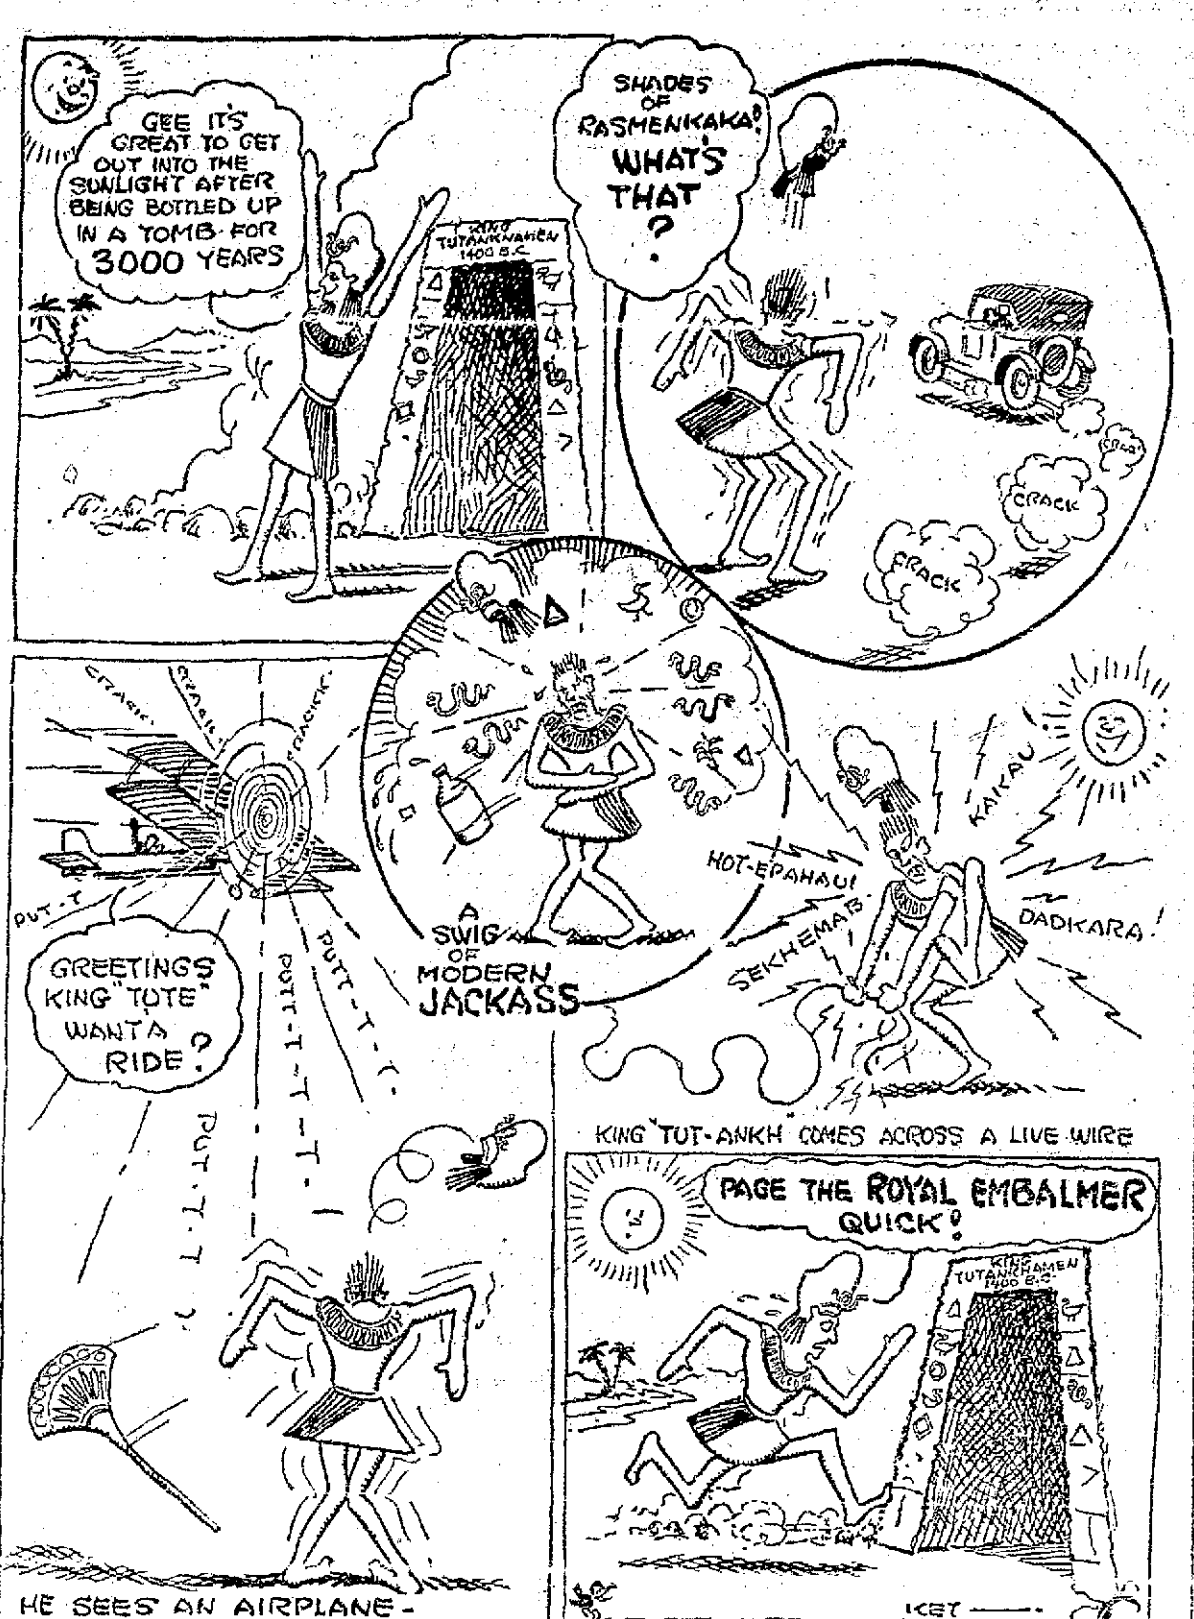

"The seven of spades! A fateful card. . . . You must be stronger in your command of yourself. You have vices, vices—not so great perhaps, but vices. And you must overcome them. You must rule yourself. You have within the impulse to give up these things, these secret things, but you do not do so."

"Your talent has not been appreciated, my friend, but it is destined to be. Money, money, money! I see money for you. I see recognition. The eight of hearts. Will it be the rule of you? Let us look. Oh, card of fate. I turn it. It is—the three of diamonds. My congratulations! You have more than your share of troubles today—but tomorrow. . . . You shall be loved by the gods. . . . Ah, yes, yes, yes. . . . That will be fifty cents extra for the future. . . . The three of diamonds and may the fortunate stars shine upon you as the cards foretell!"

"That will give the general impression of what we intend. The list of omens is not yet complete, but we are working on it. . . . When we are ready to begin our career, we will announce the fact in this column."

EXCERPTS from the NATIONAL PRESS

New York Herald: "Oklahoma, a new order, the Ladies of the Ku Klux Klan, the 'embers of which, wearing masks and light blue flowing robes decorated with a white cross, have undertaken to put out of business illicit stills, a bootleggers' ring, a band of narcotic drug peddlers and a band of automobile thieves. If these women carry out their program there will not be much left for the male members of the Klan to do. Perhaps the women may even regulate them."

Kansas City Star: "Once more the female of the species has demonstrated her deadliness. Washington society is rocking under the shock of the letter from the senator's wife, denouncing the cabinet officer's wife for having the Marine Band play at her parties while senators' wives have to go out and hire musicians, an holing up to the world the fact that the botanical gardens furnish flowers for the home of the secretary, while the downtrodden senator has to order them from the florist!"

Seattle Times: "Alaska fisheries again are the subject of controversy. Trap sites and seining grounds years ago furnished the cause of warfare between rival companies. Jurisdiction in the matter of leases and taxes more recently gave rise to disputes between territorial and federal governments. Issuance of permits in reservation waters now is a 'issue between the delegate in Congress and the comm' ions of the United States Bureau of Fisheries."

Chicago Tribune: "Samuel Insull, head of the Chicago Civic Opera, says that 'he season should be longer. He would like to tackle the deficit with more weeks, a smaller number of operas, and a defeated pay roll. To one of these proposals we say nay. No longer season. Too much is enough already.'"

Kansas City Times: "The chaplain at the inauguration of Governor Hunt of Arizona prayed that Arizona might be regarded as the playground of the angels. That will be all right with California. It only wants to be the playground of the angels."

JUST FOLKS

THE TRAINING OF JIMMY MCBRIDE.

Jimmy McBride was a common sense kid. The son of a common sense mother and dad. Who had born him and bred him to labor. He'd been taught, what a common sense lad understands. That the Lord in His wisdom had given him hands. For handling a pick or a sledge.

"Your feet are for walking," his father once said: "To see with God gave you two eyes in your head, And your mouth is for eating and drinking, And that you'll remember, I'm making it plain. You've also been given what men call a brain, And the brain is put in there for thinking."

"Now you've all the equipment the greatest possess, And some men have risen to glory with less, So don't be afraid, but go to it; If it's honest, and useful, and ought to be done, Don't think it beneath you, but jump in, my son, Go straight to your duty and do it."

When Jimmy came home with the dirt on his face. They never once said: "It's a shame and disgrace! Poor boy, you are worn out and weary!" No pity for Jimmy his labors inspired. His old father said: "It is sweet to be tired, It makes the home-coming so cheery."

His old mother said, with the pride in her eye: "There's nothing like work to put flavor in pie. Come in and sit down to your dinner, And he'd said to themselves when he'd gone to his bed: 'Forging ahead, Our Jimmy McBride is a winner.'"

And when their old age came upon them at last No touch of regret stole the joy from the past, Nor envy of happier neighbor; And they thanked the good Lord who had sent them their Jimmy. That they'd had the wisdom in dealing with him, To teach him the value of labor. (Copyright, 1923 by Edgar A. Guest.)

The Decoy.

A clergyman, taking occasional duty for a friend in a remote country parish, was greatly scandalized on observing the old verger, who had been collecting the offertory, quietly abstract a fifty-cent piece before presenting the plate at the altar-rail.

After service he called the old man into the vestry and told him with some emotion that his crime had been discovered. The verger looked puzzled for a moment. Then a sudden light dawned on him.

"Why, sir, you don't mean that old fifty-cent piece was mine, do you? Well, that's all right for the last fifteen years!"—Everybody's Magazine.

PERSONAL HEALTH SERVICE

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author.
By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.,
Noted Physician and Author.
"I am 42 years old," writes a Washington correspondent, "five feet seven and one-half inches tall and weigh 155 pounds. I have always had the best of health and I can run races with my small children, so I imagine I am now in pretty fair physical condition. I suppose, however, I will have to face the change of life before many years, and I want to be in the best possible condition for that ordeal."

Now, before we say another word I want to have it clearly understood that there isn't a such ordeal, and I reserve the right to refuse to testify on the ground that it would tend to incriminate me in the event that any reader writes in to ask "Well, then, if there is no change of life, what would you call my trouble?" This is the inevitable reaction whenever I decline to acknowledge as entities such fanciful states as "rheumatism," "catarrh," "cold," "nervous breakdown" and "indigestion." Mind, I do not doubt that folk with these obsessions really have something the matter; I merely insist that it isn't the legendary thing they imagine it to be. What really does all this is something or the doctor to find out, unless they are content to drift along with such soothing but meaningless diagnoses as those named above.

We all pass through the change of life, most of us without calamity, every day and every year, quite as definitely in every sense as does the woman of 45 or thereabouts.

We are all men and women, subject to various diseases or impairments in middle age, but sex is absolutely not a factor worthy of consideration in the prevention or treatment of any of the health disturbances of this epoch of life.

As bootless as it is to hope or expect that "the change" will bring about cure or belief of anything that ails you, it is really absurd to suffer needless anxiety about the "ordeal" to be met at 50.

No sensible woman need take any other or more precautions or care of her health at 40 or 50 than she does or should at 20 or 10 or 70.

ALL GENERALS.

The curriculum of the "School of Democracy" in New York includes courses of instruction to equip students for party leadership. This is sheer recklessness. Judging the future by the past, the Democratic party will not lack for leaders in the next campaign. It has frequently lacked enough voters, but it has never been short of chiefs. Often it has been afflicted with an excess supply that has resulted in intraparty ruction. Already there are as many leaders scattered through the party as there are generals in Mexico.

If any doubts exist as to the abundance of leaders, they must fade in the light of reports of contests for leadership that are now appearing daily in the news columns. Almost every prominent Democrat is playing for the honor of leading his party. In increasing number, factions are mobilizing behind favorites. Taken by and large, the intraparty situation is evidently complicated by the imminence of clashes over leadership. What the Democratic party needs is not instruction in how to lead, but in how to follow.—Washington Post.

Her Cult. "His wife worships the floor he walks on." "Indeed?" "Yes, she scolds severely if he drops his ashes on it."—New York Sun.

Geraldine's SHOULDER

Listen, World

I LIKE Old Clothes. Old shabby clothes, which fit one's needs and spare one's corns. They seem to me like friends who understand. My hiking shirt and trousers, and my nice, high boots, their leather scuffed and stained with tar weed and adobe mud. The battered hat that once was brown, which knows exactly where my bare buns are. My favorite kitchen apron, built upon the classic, simple lines of a potato sack. My painting smock that looks as though I'd dug it out of some Egyptian tomb. My ancient sweater, full of undyed holes. And a weird bathrobe which was young when Cleo first made eyes at Anthony. I know they are not beautiful. But I love them. I look like something God forgot when I go, thus arrayed.

I know, because my friends all tell me so. They walk three blocks that they may tell me so. They roll up phone bills and lick stamps that they may tell me so. They rush me fiercely to my wardrobe and point out the pretty dresses which hang there in a row.

One ought to be ashamed to look like that, they yell. "Why don't you wear that puffed gingham dress and park your feet inside some decent shoes?" That bathrobe should be shot at with a cannon. And for the lava Mike, remade that hat? That's what they say.

My Marriage Problems

Oldie Garrison's New Phase Of Revelations of a Wife

DRAKE HAD A SILENT DIS-AGREEMENT.

Reaction inevitably follows the tensest of situations, and I think we all needed and welcomed the relaxation which the discovery of Katie's audacity gave us.

At any rate, Lillian's exclamation was like a key unlocking our risibilities. Allen Drake led off with a hearty guffaw so oddly contrasted with his usual cynical poise that I stared at him in amazement, and Lillian, my father and I joined him in a chorus of laughter.

For a tense second, Katie stood motionless, patiently undisturbed between offended dignity and mirth. Then her face relaxed, and she giggled gleefully, all her fright forgotten, as is Katie's volatile way.

"Where are these scissors which are so needed to complete this?" Allen Drake asked when we had finally settled back into composure. "Katie! I am so lost in contemplation of your genius, that I know I never shall find myself again until I see the end of this reel, so please let me hunt the scissors."

His eyes rested on the girl with exactly the same expression, I told myself hotly, that they would have held were he suddenly confronted with an unusually clever performing seal. To me Katie is a vivid, lovable, human personality, to Allen Drake, I saw clearly that at this moment she was an impersonal problem, a little less than human, whose antics appealed both to his sense of humor and to his love of tormenting, an instinct possessed by anything masculine, but which is especially well developed in Allen Drake.

"DOTS IR."

Katie's broad smile vanished abruptly at his request, and I saw her eyes flash ominously. She could not understand his vocabulary, but her keen perceptions told her he was making fun of her. I intervened quickly, for I had no desire to discipline the girl for another outburst of rudeness.

"There are some scissors in a desk here," I said, rising and crossing the room to a desk in which I kept a few extra sewing machines. "Come here, Katie," I made my voice kindly, but peremptory, and the girl walked obediently toward me, giving me the opportunity I wished to speak to her. I changed my position so that I effectively shielded Katie from Mr. Drake's observation as I murmured softly:

"Katie, for my sake don't notice anything he says."

Into her big eyes came the look of fidelity one always associates with a faithful dog. With only a comprehending little nod she took the scissors and returned to my mother-in-law's handbox, while I constrained myself to suppress the indignant frown which I knew my face held for Allen Drake.

With quick, deft fingers Katie ripped a piece of the velvet covering the hat, and drew from beneath it a folded paper, which she held out to me, saying simply:

"Dot's it."

I held it out to my father, who took it and scanned it for a second. Then he looked at Katie with kindly relaxed face.

A PEREMPTORY TATTOO.

"Yes, this is the paper taken from the book. Thank you, Katie, you may go now. Mrs. Graham will talk to you later."

Katie looked at the hat whose covering she had just ripped, and then at me, saying simply:

"You do not mind?" she asked worriedly.

"I'll attend to that, Katie," I returned. "It won't take but a minute. Go to bed now and try to get some sleep."

She snatched my hand and kissed it.

"I think I never sleep again," she said mournfully, then she went slowly out of the room.

"That's a good line," Allen Drake said approvingly, "but I can't echo it. Me! I think I like to sleep clock round about now."

He grinned maliciously at me as I turned from the desk with the thimble, needle and black silk thread I needed for the restoration of my mother-in-law's hat, and at the grimace, even more at his atrocious imitation of Katie's speech, I wished that I could substitute his features for the hat.

My father replied quickly before I could speak, though indeed I had no intention of answering Mr. Drake's thrust.

"My dear boy, I am thoughtless in keeping you up so long. I have forgotten that you are but a few days convalescent. The rest of this night I'll be in bed."

"All right, I grant you," Mr. Drake returned.

"And that is," my father asked, "the restoration of this hat. I think we should form a second line of defense behind Mrs. Graham when she returns, for if its power should discover—"

Upon the door which we had locked behind Katie, sounded a peremptory tattoo.

Child's History of the HUMAN RACE

By Ramon C. Coffin

COLLEGE DISPUTES AND FIGHTS.

It was common for students of the Middle Ages to wear daggers or swords at their sides. Some of them were wild fellows. They did not care much about learning. They spent most of their time gambling, drinking and having a general good time.

What do you suppose the daggers and swords were for? Chiefly for fights with the townsmen. At Oxford, Cambridge, Paris, Cologne and other university places, many persons lived besides the students. They were often in quarrels with the boisterous fellows who went to the universities.

Sometimes, the students quarreled amongst themselves. At Oxford, there was a hot feud between Irish and Scotch students.

In an effort to put an end to the fighting, Oxford decided to impose fines. Any student who struck with his fist was to be fined four shillings. For striking with stones or clubs, the fine was six shillings and eight pence. The fine was ten shillings for striking with a dagger, sword or other weapon.

The head man of Oxford was called the chancellor. He acted as the judge when students or teachers got into trouble.

One time there was a dispute between Sir Thomas Lancaster, who had many students in his charge, and John Merton, a teacher. The wife of Merton was also in the dispute, on the side of her husband. Lancaster was backed by a certain Simon Marshall.

Instead of going to law, those four tried to have the quarrel settled peaceably. One of the chief men of the university heard their case and decided:

"You shall agree not to go to law about the case. Neither shall you strike one another, or use words of abuse, or make faces."

Instead of doing any such things, you shall have a party together. One side must supply a goose and some wine. The other

The following writer is very indignant at a supposed insult to England. Let me hasten to assure him (or her) that no racial insults have been or will be printed in this column. He has taken a joking letter far too seriously. It is not well to take anyone in this column seriously except me, and I wouldn't advise anyone to take even me very seriously. We are only a group of friends who watch the world go by and gossip as we watch. We have many arguments but they are not ill-natured arguments. Friend, and I am sorry if any one of them has hurt you. Please forgive this apology, let me also add word of advice. If any letter seemed to disparage the English nation you have a perfect right to rebuke the writer. But you do not add to the dignity of your rebuke when you turn around and disparage the other chap.

Dear Geraldine:

Many slurs and untrue stories have appeared in the press from time to time about the English and one becomes resigned to the fact that a powerful nation with possessions covering part of the globe is naturally drawn to the jealousy and hatred of some people, but last night's letter from "The Gob" is about the limit.

England has had no African troops patrolling the Rhine, neither does she have any of the Hindoo troops, but they returned to India at the conclusion of war.

I have been a resident of England, the United States and Canada an equal number of years, and can honestly say that the English are superior to any. How the African troops belonging to France are conducting themselves we do not know, but we do know how Germans acted toward helpless Belgian and French women who were not in sympathy with Germany do not forget. As to German women being safe only in the vicinity of U. S. troops, it is to laugh! They certainly are just as safe as they want to be. But with the English they can be as safe as they want to be, and have relatives with the army of occupation, and know what I'm talking about.

In another part of his letter "The Gob" writes: "We at England are, or were, white to begin with." Come from? The England that his forefathers did not come over in "The Mayflower" is superfluous. No one would suspect they did, but it is not difficult to guess to what race he came from, and not so long ago either. In the meantime, "The Gob" gives his mind a good housecleaning before he writes such rubbish about a nation that, whatever its faults, is a protector and not a destroyer of women.

One word more regarding the oft-repeated phrase, "The U. S. saved England from a vicious war." She did so in the same manner that England saved France, and for the same reason. A victorious Germany would be equally intolerable to both countries, the only difference being the U. S. fought a little more than one year, against England's four years.

NOT A LONELY GIRL.

Your statement that "as far as morals are concerned, Englishmen are superior to any" is plain foolishness. You can't generalize on such a subject. Which it comes to being "straight" need, the United States is known as a pride. I do not think that her soldiers are any more or less moral than the soldiers of other nations. Morals are a matter of individual development, and no two nations regard them alike. Which shock says and do things which shock say. We're none of us little tin gods.

I confess my complete inability to answer the following letter. If this gentleman belonged to me I would give him a good thrashing. I say, you want to cure him with a bonus. Why anyone should desire to retain such an over-stuffed hat, back in the future, I have my complete sympathy to the little lady and pass her problem on to you for the answering.

Dear Geraldine:

Will you and your gang, give me some advice?

I was married several years ago

Th' biographies o' th' great men o' t' day is purty poor readin'. They git "great" too young an' too easy. We expect t' be readin' about Chester Berry any day now, with illustrations coverin' in his whole early life. Chester's mother an' father lived here about an hour after they wuz married, but somehow we allus seem t' think o' him as an ole town boy. He's very successful at somethin' in th' east, but we don't know what it is. But th' lives o' modern "great" men don't read nothin' like th' lives o' Lincoln, Garfield, Rockefeller, Cleveland, Vanamaker, Caruso, Buffalo Bill, or even Judge Pusey, o' Tulip, Indiana. Jest fer instance, let's take a peek int' th' early life of Judge Pusey. Biography records scarcely a finer example o' intelligence an' application leadin' ther possessor out o' th' most unpromising circumstances t' honor an' affluence. Pusey's father was a man that could drink or leave it alone, so he wuz soon set t' walk, walkin' eleven miles t' his task an' carryin' his dinner, which consisted of a cold boiled turnip. As he trudged along th' turnpike he studies from such ole, dilapidated books as he wuz lucky enough t' pick up. Sometimes it would be Ray's arithmetic, or th' speeches o' Macaulay, or Somerville's first reader, or "Th' Scarlet Letter," or th' geographic survey. He would devour anything he could lay hands to, therefore his information was wide an' rangy. When th' days got short he carried a sweet oil lamp on his cap t' study by, an' wuz often mistaken fer a minor. In three or four years, after he'd saved enough to buy shoes an' clothes (after supplyin' his mother an' little sister), he begun th' study o' law in th' office o' Salathiel Baxter, a famous jurist o' his day. His first duty wuz t' carry eight tons o' soft coal t' a back room o' th' office on th' third floor o' th' old Phoenix block. He also hauled th' Baxter oxen, ridin' horse an' milch cows, in return fer which he got his board an' keep. Young Pusey wuz in his twenty-seventh year before he knew what a regular hair-cut wuz. His whiskers wuz fourteen inches long before he ever got a haircut, an' even t' this day he's never held a selective office. But we doubt if th' youths o' today are made o' th' same stuff that th' judge is made of. We doubt if we could even git a foreigner t' carry a ton o' coal upstairs, an' we don't know o' nobuddy that'd walk over a couple o' blocks o' work. Th' judge didn't go t' school, but th' road he used t' study along is still whar it allus wuz. Judge Pusey owns a car an' a home both an' is not infrequently seen with his wife.

HARRIET and the PIPER

Level-Headed Love Stolen Love Tempestuous Love

By Kathleen Norris

Madame Carter was on the terrace when they came back at five from an idle trip to the club, reporting that her son had just returned unexpectedly from the city, and had gone in to change for golf.

Nothing alarming here, yet Harriet experienced a sick thrill of apprehension. Something abnormal seemed to be the matter with them all this afternoon.

"Did you call me, Mr. Carter?" She hardly knew her own voice, as he came down the three broad steps from the house. Her hands felt cold, and she was trembling.

"Do you happen to know where Hansen is, Miss Field?"

"Driving Mrs. Carter to the Webb's at Great Barrington," the girl answered readily. "Will young Burke do? Mrs. Webb telephoned, and Mrs. Carter left in a hurry. She did not expect you tonight. Hansen ought to be back at about seven, I should think."

He was not listening to her; abruptly left her. When Harriet went into the house she saw nothing of him. But she knew he had not gone away for the usual golf and was conscious still of that odd fluttering of mind and soul, that presage of ill. She made her usual little round, spoke briefly to a maid about some fallen daisy petals, consulted with the housekeeper as to the new crochets covers. A man was to come and measure those covers this very afternoon—perhaps this was he, modestly waiting at the side door.

But no, this man briefly and simply asked to be shown to Mr. Carter, remarking that he was expected. He disappeared into the library; Harriet saw no more of him for an hour, when he silently appeared beside her, and asked to see the chauffeur, Hansen, as soon as he came.

Richard brought the strange man to the dinner table; but there was nothing in that to make the dinner so unsuited. To be sure, Richard ate little, and spoke hardly at all; but this Mr. Williams was quite entertaining, and the old lady in good spirits. Nina, pleased at being downstairs, as she and Harriet usually were when her father and mother were not at home, or when there was no company, also contributed some shy remarks. But Harriet was beset with sudden fits of nervousness, and oppressed by a heavy sense of impending disaster. She said to herself that she wished heartily the weather would break and clear, she felt like "a witch."

At eight Hansen was back, presenting himself in his dusty roadcoat. Mrs. Carter immediately drew him into the library.

Old lady and Harriet remained downstairs. They did not like, but they sometimes amused, each other. Suddenly came the summons; would Miss Field please step into the library?

Hansen was going out as she came in; Richard was at the flat-topped desk, the man Williams standing somewhat in shadow. Harriet's heart leaped; they were going to ask her about Royce.

"Just a moment, Miss Field," Mr. Williams said. "Will you sit down?" And as Harriet, looking at him in frightened curiosity, did so, he began quietly: "Mrs. Carter is some trouble here, Miss Field. I hardly know how to tell you what we fear. Did you notice anything strange about Mrs. Carter's manner today?"

"I thought I did," Harriet admitted.

"Did you think of any reason for it?"

Harriet gave the stranger a glance that made him an eavesdropper.

"I fancied that it was connected with what distressed her last night, Mr. Carter."

"You may speak before Mr. Williams," Richard said. He looked down, was silent. "I asked him to help me," he added, slowly. "There's no telling where I am now. Mrs. Carter is gone."

"I thought I did," Harriet admitted.

"Did you think of any reason for it?"

Harriet gave the stranger a glance that made him an eavesdropper.

"I fancied that it was connected with what distressed her last night, Mr. Carter."

"You may speak before Mr. Williams," Richard said. He looked down, was silent. "I asked him to help me," he added, slowly. "There's no telling where I am now. Mrs. Carter is gone."

ALONG MAIN STREET

The beauty of the modern girl appears to be very much on the surface.

Some folks get a reputation for pounce by being too darn lazy to move.

The more worthless a man is the easier it is for some woman to marry him.

Some people would never be heard of if it wasn't for the mistakes they make.

The man who spends more than he earns robs someone else of his rightful share.

The wet propaganda now going around the country seems to come in part mainly of light wines and fear.

Forget your troubles. There's a lot more coming to you before you die.

The American people don't care much what happens to the Turks, so long as it happens.

The man with a good opinion of himself may be a mighty poor judge of human nature.

Personally, we are perfectly satisfied to let every dog have its day if it will give us our nights.

If a boy is said to be the living photograph of his father, it is all right to call a girl the very photograph of her mother!

Keep it all hushed up. She has Germaine with her; Hansen I can trust. We're off now, Miss Field. I'll keep you informed if I can."

Harriet went back to the drawing room with her heart big with pride. He had mentioned Hansen and Germaine, but he knew that he could trust her! The event was sensational enough, was horrifying enough. But back of the excitement lay the explanation of being needed and being trusted.

"Mr. Carter going away again?" said Madame Carter.

"Mr. Williams came up from the city to consult him about something," Harriet explained smoothly. "They may have to go back."

"What about Royce?" the old lady asked. And immediately she added, suspiciously, "What'd he want Hansen for?"

"Doctor and Mrs. Houghton," said Madame Carter.

"Mr. Williams came up from the city to consult him about something," Harriet explained smoothly. "They may have to go back."

"What about Royce?" the old lady asked. And immediately she added, suspiciously, "What'd he want Hansen for?"

"Doctor and Mrs. Houghton," said Madame Carter.

CLARICE PATTERNS

Neat House Dress. (No. 1656)

There's no need to wear unsightly garments about the house when you can obtain patterns in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure for this attractive house frock. To make it in the 36-inch material with 2 yards 36-inch material with 1 1/2 yards 36-inch contrasting. If plain and checked gingham at 25c per yard were used, the finished garment would cost less than 90c.

Even if one knows little or nothing about sewing, this house garment creates no great sewing problem because the pieces are in one with the long waist. The neckline is becomingly finished with a collar of the same material as that used for the skirt.

How to Obtain Clarice Patterns

Write your name and address plainly, including city, giving the number and size of such patterns as you want. Enclose 15 cents in stamps or coin (wrap coin carefully) for each number, and address your order to Clarice Pattern Bureau, Oakland Tribune, Oakland, Calif. As these are ordered specially from Chicago, a few days should be allowed for delivery.

telephone call from Mrs. Webb?"

Richard said.

"No, because nobody did. No person named Webb called from Great Barrington, or anywhere else, today," said Williams, breaking in decidedly, his voice a contrast to Richard's hesitating tones. "As a matter of fact, Hansen didn't drive to Great Barrington. Two miles from your gate, Mrs. Carter gave him other directions."

"What directions?" Harriet asked, antagonized by his manner, and feeling her cheeks get red.

The man evidently had small respect for womanhood.

"He drove to New London," Richard supplied. "Pope's yacht is there."

His manner was very quiet, he spoke almost wearily, but Harriet felt as if a cannon had exploded in the house.

Looked toward Williams, whose mouth was pursed in a silent whistle, looked back at Richard, who was making idle pencil marks on a tablet of paper.

"I've had New London on the wire," said Mr. Williams. "Mr. Pope has been getting ready for a cruise. The chances are that they have already weighed anchor."

"On the other hand," Richard said, glancing at his watch, "we have an excellent prospect of finding them there. I was not supposed to come home until tomorrow night. I found Mrs. Carter's message at five, twenty-four hours earlier than she expected me to. Williams may be mistaken, of course," he finished, with a glance at the detective.

"Not likely!" said Williams, with a modest shrug.

"However, even if he is right," Richard resumed, "the chances are that they are still there, and if they are, I will bring my wife back with me tonight. Meanwhile, I leave the house until Mrs. Carter comes. I didn't tell you that my mother and Nina must be kept absolutely ignorant of what we suspect. You'll know what to tell them, in case I should be longer away. If on Saturdays, we won't there's no telling where I am now. Mrs. Carter is gone."

"I thought I did," Harriet admitted.

"Did you think of any reason for it?"

Harriet gave the stranger a glance that made him an eavesdropper.

"I fancied that it was connected with what distressed her last night, Mr. Carter."

"You may speak before Mr. Williams," Richard said. He looked down, was silent. "I asked him to help me," he added, slowly. "There's no telling where I am now. Mrs. Carter is gone."

BETTY'S WOMBAT.

Betty Ganibit has a wombat. Now a wombat is no trick bat. Not a dingbat nor a trickbat. Nor a tomit nor a tom cat. But a plain Australian wombat. (Sort of 'possum that can burrow like a fat mouse in a furrow.)

It is like an orange somewhat. Like a wombat eat a kumquat? Uncle Ben bet Betty Gambit That her pet wombat. Twas a bum bet.

For the wombat scorned the kumquat. And then filled with rage and combat. Fought with him. It was a dum bout.

Betty's wombat bit his gum boot!

ALEXANDER BALM
FREE: PUT ON 10-
YEAR PROBATIONFormer Financier Instructed to Make Further Restitution
by Judge Church.

After having been held in jail for more than 10 months, Alexander Balm, attorney and former financier, is at liberty today on ten years' probation on charges of embezzlement.

Balm's troubles, however, are not at an end, according to the terms of probation, which was granted late yesterday afternoon by Superior Judge L. S. Church. Balm entered a plea of guilty to embezzling the sum of $23,000 from the estate of his mother, the late Eliza Balm. It was brought out at yesterday's hearing that the actual defalcations had run between $4,000 and $80,000. The fixing of this amount of probation to be complied with and Balm will appear before Judge Church for examination on this score on Saturday, February 17. In this regard the court, in granting probation said:

"The defendant should be examined, under oath, at the earliest possible date to determine just how large the actual defalcations are. He must be prepared to submit a list of the properties taken from the estate and also a list of what properties he can turn over to make restitution. Failure to fairly and accurately inform the court on these matters will be considered a violation of one of the terms of his probation."

ACCOUNTING FIRST REFUSED.

In the will left by his mother, Eliza Balm, the defendant was appointed administrator. He first came into public notice when he was directed by Superior Judge E. C. Robinson, of the probate court, to file an accounting of certain properties left by the estate. This he refused to do and was ordered committed to the county jail until he did so. Judge Robinson finding him guilty of contempt of court. The embezzlement charges followed and after several weeks, Balm pleaded guilty to the charge.

In pronouncing sentence yesterday, granting probation, Judge Church said: "The defendant must make a complete restitution. Money and property must be turned over to the estate at such times as the court may determine."

MUST SEEK EMPLOYMENT.

"The defendant must also seek a legitimate employment or enter a legitimate business as soon as possible. One-third of his salary or his earnings from such business must be applied to clear the defalcations."

A portion of the property turned back to the estate came from Mrs. Diamond B. Marshall, 1118 San Pablo avenue, Berkeley, who, during the probate hearing told Judge Robinson that she had received from Alexander Balm, her son-in-law, and other gifts from Balm. She, at that time, turned over the property in question.

The charges against Balm were instigated by other heirs of the Balm estate, including nine grandchildren. Among them are the following: Mrs. Eliza R. Wood, Piedmont; Horace C. Baum, Rudolph Baum, Margarita Brunn, Oella J. Baum, Johanna B. Dreesel, Virginia H. Meyers, Rudolph L. Dreesel, Carmelita L. Dreesel, all of San Francisco.

OAKLAND NEEDS
MORE HOUSING

The number of weddings in Oakland in 1922 added to the number of new families that moved here in that period, was more than twice as great as the number of the new houses built to meet the increase of population, according to Guy W. Wolf, who addressed the Home Ownership Forum of the Y. M. C. A. last night.

Wolf, who is manager of the retail merchants' department of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, said in part:

"In 1921 we built 100,000 new homes in the United States and issued 1,500,000 marriage licenses. During the last four years more than 5,000,000 couples have been married in our country and we have built less than 250,000 new homes to house them."

"In 1922, there moved into Oakland, 5503 new families, and 2000 marriages took place, giving Oakland a total increase of more than 7500 families. To meet this increase in population, we built only 2975 houses."

"The future of Oakland as a great industrial city and as a residence city depends upon our working out some plan of increasing the construction of homes to take care of the increase in population."

NIPPON POLICIES ARE DENOUNCED

Responsibility for the uprising of the young Turks, and for the general unrest and nationalist movements in India and other parts of Asia, was placed on Japan yesterday, in an address delivered by William Gillanders, secretary of the Oakland Y. M. C. A. at the luncheon of the Optimist club at the Hotel Oakland.

Gillanders declared that Japan is determined to lead the east and that all her organizations and ideals are centered on this object. This idea, the speaker said, arose out of the results of the Russo-Japanese war.

Gillanders recently visited Japan and went to several Japanese universities and colleges. Everywhere he found that the students believe that they ought to live their lives for Japan. The speaker described the following as weaknesses of Japan: Her materialistic viewpoint, her shallowness and the untruthfulness of the people, especially in business.

Osborn Leaves
Friendships as Finest Treasure

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 10.—"Life is made happy only by friendships," wrote Captain Henry T. Osborn, congressman from the 10th California district, in a letter to his friends a few days before his death at his home here Thursday.

Captain Osborn realized death was near, so he wrote a letter of farewell to his friends, asking his son, Sherrill L. Osborn, to send them his own letter, and to them to show his appreciation of their "staunch friendship."

The letter read in part:

"Life is made happy only by friendships. My own life has been a happy one because of friendships and whatever I may be credited in accomplishing has been because of true friends in so many walks of life. They have been staunch, true friends, and their confidence and support have always been a comfort to me."

"I have never counted as very important among life's ambitions the accumulation of worldly riches. Money is good only in its use and expenditure and for others. But I always felt that services for my fellows, so far as my ability has brought me the greatest reward, and I have felt repaid that I have devoted most of my life in public service."

Funeral services will be held Monday.

BLIGHT-PROOF
CORN WILL BE
HUNTED IN CHINA

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10.—Means of rejuvenating the flower and fruit gardens of America and discovery of drought and blight resisting species of corn and chestnuts will be sought by an expedition which the National Geographic Society announced yesterday it was preparing to send to China.

Joseph J. Rock, discoverer of the champagne tree, the oil from which is used to treat leprosy, will head the party, it was said.

In a waxy tissue of corn reported in sight in China, the scientists hope to find a drought-resistant quality needed to increase acreage of this product here, while they also expect to determine whether peculiar types of chestnut trees reported in that country are adaptable to blight.

Eastbay Found
Ideal Place for Gliding Contest

Albany Recommended for Its Favorable Air Currents;
Start From Knoll.

The climate, topography, meteorology and air currents of the Eastbay cities are ideal for a great proposed national gliding contest, and recommendations were made that such a contest be held here, according to Henry C. Reynolds, chairman of a committee appointed by Mayor Davis for that purpose.

The conditions here, according to Reynolds, are even better than those at the Downs, England, where the standard for all gliding fields. Reynolds' observations, covering many weeks, have included the use of many meteorological charts and instruments.

The stellar gliding place of the nation, says Reynolds, is at Albany. A glider, starting from a hill behind Albany and traveling westward, can remain aloft for 12 to 14 hours. The glider would strike upward air-currents which blow from the knoll across the city, and then descend behind Albany and travel westward, can remain aloft for 12 to 14 hours. The glider would strike upward air-currents which blow from the knoll across the city, and then descend behind Albany and travel westward, can remain aloft for 12 to 14 hours.

The Reynolds report will be sent to Washington by air mail. In proof of Albany's value to gliders, Reynolds points out that a University of California experimenter, Hoggan, took two passengers for a glide over Albany, this being the first time that a glider ever ridden in such a machine.

"We are thoroughly satisfied with our investigations," says Reynolds. "The Eastbay is the logical place for gliders."

JUGGLED PHOTOS
HELP SMUGGLERS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10.—It was learned yesterday that for the past thirteen years the smuggling of Chinese into this country through the "juggling" of photographs on records in the Immigration Department, has been carried on. The practice came to light in June, 1910, when Lee Yee Gim, Yee's brother, a boy, Chinese, petitioned for the admission of his two sons, born in China, and now being held on Angel Island. It was found that records on file in the Federal building bore Lee's photo, while those on file at the immigration station bore the photo of an unidentified Chinese, whose picture, it was learned, had been substituted so that he could smuggle his own sons into this country.

13-YEAR-OLD
IN CARD ROW

CHICAGO, Feb. 10.—(By International News Service).—Police today captured Robert Rutkowski, 13, who shot and killed a boy, Melowitz, his 13-year-old chum, during a quarrel over a card game. Rutkowski attempted to clinch his argument with a loaded revolver. The boys became angry after Melowitz accused Rutkowski of exposing his hand in the deal. Unable to arbitrate, Rutkowski got a revolver and fired. Melowitz died almost instantly.

Rutkowski confessed to the shooting. He didn't mean to kill Melowitz, he told police.

Civil Service
Extension Urged

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 10.—Stressing the importance of maintaining the civil service system, both as an insurance against the evils of political patronage and as a guarantee of efficiency, the state civil service commission, in its biennial report to Governor Richardson, urges that with a few exceptions all state employees be placed under the merit system.

The commission's report, which was filed with Governor Richardson early today, declares that it is to the interest of economy in state government to extend the civil service system to virtually every branch of the government.

The emphasis with which the civil service commission stressed the importance of not curtailing the expansion of the merit system is reminiscent of the protest against Governor Richardson's action in cutting the budget of the board.

During the past biennium the board spent approximately $87,000 and the requests were increased for the ensuing two year period to provide for expansion.

JUDGE DEMANDS
PROOF OF WOMEN FROM PRISON TO FARMBerkeley Club Hears Mrs.
Saylor and Indorses Plea for Sonoma Work.

BERKELEY, Feb. 10.—Resolutions asking that feminine prisoners be removed from San Quentin to the industrial farm for women at Sonoma, and that work be begun at the latter place for dope addicts and other vagrants be continued, were passed at yesterday's meeting of the Berkeley Public Spirit Club.

The club gave endorsement to the request for an appropriation of $75,000 added for the purpose of removing the women prisoners to the farm, and for an appropriation of $100,000 asked for the proposed work with narcotic addicts.

MAKES PLEA FOR FARM.

Adoption of the resolutions followed an address to the club by Mrs. Anna L. Saylor, assemblywoman from the Forty-first district. Mrs. Saylor made a plea for the industrial farm for women at Sonoma, and pointed out that a large majority of the sixty-four women now there are dope addicts. She declared that the institution has been operated under the direction of Miss Blanche Morse of Berkeley for a little more than one year at a cost of approximately $63 per capita per month.

CRITICIZES CONDITIONS.

Mrs. Saylor referred to conditions in general in state institutions, and gave an account of the deplorable condition in which she found the women at San Quentin prison, where she declared some fifty-six women have been housed in quarters adequate for twenty. She declared that women should not be allowed at San Quentin at all, and strongly recommended that provision be made for them at the state industrial farm, in accordance with a bill introduced by Miss Miller, assemblywoman from Fresno.

Several members of the club, including Prof. T. D. Beekwith and Prof. J. V. Breitwieser of the University of California, confirmed the statements of Mrs. Saylor and unanimous support was given to the resolutions.

Candidates for Police Jobs Are Wanted by City

Patrolmen, Announces
Service Board.

The City of Oakland wants more candidates for members of the police force.

Examinations, according to Secretary C. C. DeWolf of the civil service board, have thinned a class of 100 down to 40 successful applicants, while the city needs 60 for the eligible list. The prospective police department, therefore, is "shy" some 20 patrolmen.

Applications will be taken until February 15 and examinations will be started immediately thereafter. DeWolf says he is willing to take a hundred or more, to assure the city of a large and reliable eligible list.

The police department is now starting a campaign for a general 10 per cent raise, and this, if secured, will add to the attractions of police life.

The civil service board also announces examinations for assistant and substitute in the public library. The examinations will be held March 21.
